

Vocational rehabilitation (for employed)

Vocational rehabilitation is intended that the person undergoing it to regain or maintain their ability to work. The support and actions will lead to the worker to return to his old job or get another suitable job, with his current employer. Actions may include changing jobs, job training, changing working hours, technological adaptation, specific work aids and so on. The employer is not obliged to take action that is expanding operations or creating new tasks.

For employees, the employer is responsible for vocational rehabilitation. The employer's liability may also include actions outside the workplace, such as education. For unemployed responsibility Insurance Agency.

Vocational Rehabilitation (for unemployed)

Vocational rehabilitation is conducted at the Employment Agency and Employment Service Rehabilitation (formerly Labour Institute, AMI) and is aimed at job seekers with special needs will get help to find and get a job in the first place in the regular labor. Rehabilitation consists of investigation and functional assessment, guidance, work trials, work adjustment, guidance and counseling / information, and employment preparation activities.

<http://www.forsakradviajobbet.se/faktabanken/rehabilitering/>

Vocational Rehabilitation

If a disease liable to cause incapacity in the next few years or decisively weaken the person's ability to earn a living

have it diagnosed right to have appropriate vocational rehabilitation to prevent disability or to improve working and acquisition opportunities

The purpose of vocational rehabilitation is to improve or maintain the person's ability to work and acquisition opportunities.

*Vocational rehabilitation may include:
multi-science tools*

- career guidance
- Rehabilitation Analysis
- Employment and training effort
- job training
- vocational (and other) training
- manpower consultancy and placement of work
- nutritional support
- tools for work or study
- support arrangements in working conditions

Where do you turn?

Vocational rehabilitation arranged by the labor authorities, the Social Insurance Institution, accident and liability insurance, occupational pension and vocational educational institutions.

More information from the municipal social welfare and employment offices.

http://www.stm.fi/sv/social_och_halsotjanster/rehabilitering/yrkesinriktad_rehabilitering
